Mumbai-based Ajay Rao (Kamal Haasan) is an agent with the Indian Government's secret service agency RAW who delivers messages to foreign embassies unobserved through use of his bilingualism in Hindi and English. After completing another successful operation for RAW, Ajay is betrayed by one of his contacts - Karim Ali (Danny Denzongpa). The operation was done with the help of a plant on RAW's payroll, a British-Indian liaison officer cum journalist named Rajiv Sharma (Mukesh Khanna), who wanted to get information on a top-secret Chinese nuclear project that had been going on in Pakistan. Ajay is aware that the operation failed because the plant on RAW's payroll leaked details about his cover identity to Karim Ali. To cover up the failure, Karim Ali informs Ajay's superiors about how Ajay was double-crossed by Rajiv Sharma and this leads to Ajay being sent back to RAW headquarters in Delhi for psychiatric observation. However, Ajay gets out of being locked up in Delhi by using his bilingualism and he drives back to Mumbai. Meanwhile, Inspector Hemant (Rajesh Khanna) is sent to investigate the failure of Ajay's operation and he finds out the truth and takes the fight against Ajay. Ajay feels like a fish out of water in Mumbai with bad things happening to him everywhere he turns. He is invited to an upmarket party by an old friend, Hari Haran (Mohnish Behl). The next day, he sees a beautiful girl called Shalini (Rambha) on the bus and follows her after she alights at Tardeo station. On enquiring as to who she was, Hari Haran tells Ajay that Shalini is the daughter of a wealthy businessman called Raja Rajarajan (Mukesh Khanna). Ajay is attracted to her. She comes back to her father's house and Ajay follows her. On the way, he bumps into a man named Pappu (Kader Khan) who seems to know Ajay well and Pappu says that he knows what happened to Ajay in Delhi. Ajay then finds out that Shalini had committed suicide. Ajay finds out that Raja Rajarajan is based in London and has no daughter, but instead an adopted daughter called Sameera (Neha Sharma). Ajay gets lucky when he sees Raja driving on the highway with Sameera in his car. Ajay sees Sameera get off the car and he follows them to the house of Sameera's stepmother, who gives him a suitcase full of money. He finds out later that Sameera is actually none other than his best friend Shankar Sastry's erstwhile girlfriend who is now married to Pappu.
